

Mentoring the Mentors Workshop Researchers

Date: Monday and Tuesday, October 28 and 29, 9:00 am to 4:00 pm

Location: 165 Cambridge St, Boston, MA (in person only)

REGISTER FOR THE WORKSHOP

Drs. Jessica Haberer, Sherri-Ann Burnett-Bowie, and Wafaie Fawzi are pleased to bring the well-established “Mentoring the Mentors” Workshop to Harvard Medical School. This two-day workshop (modeled after the program held at UCSF since 2012) is an intensive and interactive meeting designed to provide research faculty with the tools for more effective mentoring, especially of mentees of diversity (defined mainly as those from underrepresented racial/ethnic minorities).

The workshop discusses barriers related to being an early career investigator of diversity (e.g. microaggressions, unconscious bias), and features didactic and interactive sessions on practical tips for mentoring, including sessions on distance mentoring, funding sources for mentoring efforts, time management, leadership styles, manuscript writing, grant writing, individual development plans, teaching work-life balance to mentees, alternative funding strategies, forming teams, etc.

Descriptions and findings from the prior workshop is found here.

This workshop is sponsored by the Fostering Diversity in HIV Research Program (R25MH119857). Due to the interactive nature of this workshop, this will not be a hybrid event.

Financial support may be available for those traveling from outside of Boston. Please inquire as appropriate.

Eligible Participants: Investigators with a faculty appointment currently mentoring early career researchers. Our focus is on HIV researchers, but all are welcome.

Registration for the workshop closes Friday, October 11.

Questions can be addressed to: Lindsey Garrison, MPH (legarrison@mgh.harvard.edu)